PRACTICAL CONSEQUENCES

Entering the threshold of Civil/Criminal Violations: 70th Precinct Police officer(s) (government officials) caught on camera assaulting plaintiff Michael T. Walker.

Actual description of video surveillance tape:

Footage shows plaintiff Michael T. Walker is handcuff with hands behind his back. Officers are holding him face down on pavement while officers repeatedly strike plaintiff about the face with closed fist.

Plaintiff has filed Notice of Claim with the State Comptroller's Office, the Internal Affairs and the Civil Complaint Review Board. The (C.C.R.B) investigator's name is Abedrabb , file# 201703481.

Plaintiff intends to provide investigators from Internal Affairs Civil Complaint Review Board. Also, evidence of the surveillance footage will be produced to establish what officer(s) were present during the arrest to determine those on the tape.

CIVIL LIABILITY

New York City Police Department as a whole is constantly suffering from major complaints, most likely pertaining to complaints that are made by civilians. These complaints leads the City to Millions of dollars with potential liabilities from a host of potential plaintiff(s).

Plaintiff, Michael T. Walker has solid evidence to extract seven figures in settlement along with alot of other consequences. The New York City Police department is already dealing with a multitude of regulatory regimes such as police shootings of unarmed blackmen and excessive force. It is very clear that the need to developpe a more robust method that will help New York City, on down to the Court system, Rikers island and the police department.

LEGAL MICROSCOPE

Search and Seizure of a Person;

As reiterated, plaintiff Michael T. Walker was handcuffed then beaten while laying faced down outside on a street pavement by government officials. The severity of the alleged crime at issue is whether the plaintiff while being handcuffed behind his back posed an immediate threat to the safety of law enforcement officer(s).

When the Internal Affairs, as well as the Civilian Complaint Review Board examine the video footage, it will clearly establish that the plaintiff was laying faced down, handcuffed and posing no threat whatsoever. Nor was the plaintiff resisting arrest or attempting to evade arrest by fight. In fact, footage shows plaintiff being held down handcuffed and repeatedly being hit upon the skull area.

These government official provided Cruel and Unusual punishment (Constitutional protection against physically abusive conduct by government official). Nonetheless, a violation of Due Process provides a method for vindicating Federal Rights unreasonable Seizure of the plaintiff.

BREAKING THE MOLD

Police brutality is and has always been a problem for many years, many of those (plaintiff) that places an 42 U.S.C 1983 Obstruction of Justice claim never make it, but those cases that survives a motion to dismiss are done by the largest Patrolmen's Benevolent Association (P.B.A) of New York City. These attorney(s) that defend the police men and women know that there is a protection code which is the Blue Wall that gives an advantage in any and all situations. Cases like these are nothing more than just the sentiment of a few out of control precinct bullies.

It has long become evident that the administration has repeatedly tried to blame the victims of police murder and brutality for the crimes carried out against them, therefore the Justice department must now exercise it's inherent authority to file charges against government officials that violate the Codes of Professional Responsibility.

INJURIES SUSTAINED

Plaintiff was diagnose with glucoma in its advance stages in 2016. Plaintiff eye doctor name is; Dr. Scott office located at SUNY Medical-Nostrad ave. in Brooklyn N.Y.

Plaintiff is prescribed 2 drops a day for the 4 months he visited with doctor scott.

medications prescrib;

1) timorol

2) Biophast-2 drops daily(dosage)

On or about January 9, 2017 at 7:30pm-1058 Coneyisland ave. plaintiff was arrested and beaten by several N.Y.C. police officer(s).

On or about January 24, 2017 while residing at Rikers Island (O.B.C.C.) upon entering the infirmary, plaintiff complained about his eye sight not being well, he was examine and transfered to West Facility (Rikers Island) to see a specialist by whom determined that plaintiff is now legally blind.

FACTUAL OCCURENCE

Plaintiff now suffers from vision of shadows and only sees dark shadows, no skin tones or features of a person or object. Although plaintiff did receive and was equip with a blind man's stick, it doesn't eliviate the fact that his Federal Constitutional Rights have been violated.

CASE LAW

In the police brutality case of Abnee Louima on March 6, 1997 at the hands of the 70th precinct, three N.Y.C. police officer(s) were convicted of a savage assault invoving Thomas Weise, Thomas Bruder, Charles Schwarz and Justin Volpe, all government officials of the 70th precinct.

With the incident involving Abner Louima, the officers at the 70th precinct sodomized him with a broomstick, tearing a one inch hole in his rectum and bladder.

Similarities in both cases at the 70th precinct:

Plaintiff Michael Walker was held down while officers beat him in the face. Please note; The officer that held Abner Louima down while he was assaulted was charged with a possible term of life.

Obstruction of Justice

Assault (gang) in the second degree-Pl. 120.05

Falsified Statements (police report)

In a more fundamental sense, the on street pavement torture took place within a definite political and social environment that has been fostered in New York. The police department as a whole have been given way to much power by the government. They have been suppressing the rights of millions of poor residents.

SDRT OF RELIEF

When parties are negotiating an agreement or exchanging terms to avoid further proceedings, they form the basis for a more formalized agreement.

In this procedure, there was no shortage of expectations, the parties however, should be aware that there are subtle differences between the approaches of criminal and civil.

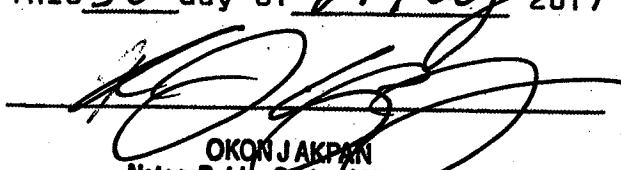

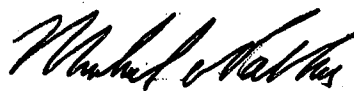

The question remains; being accused of an alledged criminal act is subject to civil proceedings.

New York Courts imposes a duty to negotiate in good faith, so when parties who have spent time and resorces negotiating thye terms of an agreement can have assurances.

Generally, negotiating in good faith requires each party to be honest about the repective interest, positions or understandings.

Respectfully,

SHOWMENSHIP OF CASE RESEARCH

Plaintiff Michael .T. Walker In U.S.C. 1983 Law.

I will allow access to the following cases before hearings and trial. This Judicial vehicle, with fact finding visual headlights, will be equip with excessive force, cruel and unusual treatment, not to mention qualified immunity.

The roots of Federal Rights are produced inside the soil of the United states Constitution. The American people wheather un-a-like in color or creed, all have a common ground to stand on regardless as a citizen, detainee, or sentence prisoners, which is the freedom to execise your rights.

Plaintiff, was handcuffed behind his back laying face down. see Brooks vs. Auroa 653, F.3rd 478, 487 (7th Cir 2007) which ruled government officials were wrong to use physical force while arestee was already handcuffed.

CHALLENGING QUALIFIED IMMUNITY

See Lewis vs, Downey 587 F.3rd 467, 478 (7th Cir 2009) arestee being handcu7ffed was significant enough to deny qualified immunity. Also, see Sallenger vs. Oaks 473 F.3rd. 478, 487 (7th Cir. 2011) force applied while handcuffed held-down excessive force. Kingsley vs. Hendrickson U.S. 135 S Ct. 2466, 192 Led 2d. 416 (2015).

KINGSLEY v. HENDRICKSON

Font size: A A Reset

United States Court of Appeals, Seventh Circuit.

Michael B. KINGSLEY, Plaintiff–Appellant, v. Stan HENDRICKSON, et al.,
Defendants–Appellees.

No. 12–3639.

Decided: September 08, 2015

Before RIPPLE and HAMILTON, Circuit Judges, and STADTMUELLER, District Judge. **Wendy M. Ward, Attorney, Jeffrey Stephen Ward, Merchant & Gould P.C., Madison, WI, Sarah O'Rourke Schrup, Attorney, Northwestern University School of Law, Chicago, IL, for Plaintiff–Appellant. Andrew A. Jones, Attorney, Whyte Hirschboeck Dudek S.C., Milwaukee, WI, for Defendants–Appellees.

This matter is before the court on remand from the Supreme Court of the United States. On June 22, 2015, the Court vacated our judgment and remanded the case to us for further proceedings. Pursuant to our Circuit Rule 54, the parties now have submitted statements of their respective positions. For the reasons set forth in this opinion, we now vacate the judgment of the district court and remand this case to the district court for a new trial.

A.

We assume familiarity with the decision of the Supreme Court. Kingsley v. Hendrickson, — U.S. —, 135 S.Ct. 2466, 192 L.Ed.2d 416 (2015), and with the earlier decision of this court, Kingsley v. Hendrickson, 744 F.3d 443 (7th Cir.2014), and therefore we only briefly summarize those proceedings here. Bringing his action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 against various officials at the Monroe County Jail in Sparta, Wisconsin, Mr. Kingsley claimed that jail officials had used excessive force in applying a Taser to him while he was held as a pretrial detainee at the facility. The jury found for the defendants. Mr. Kingsley appealed to this court, claiming that he had been prejudiced by the instructions given to the jury. In particular, Mr. Kingsley maintained that the district court had erred by instructing the jury that he was required to establish the subjective intent of the officers. In affirming the judgment of the district court, we determined that the jury “instructions were not an erroneous or confusing statement of the law of this circuit.” Kingsley, 744 F.3d at 445. Specifically, we held that relevant Supreme Court precedent directed us to evaluate an excessive force claim by a pretrial detainee using the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Looking to our own cases, we concluded that “some consideration of [the] intent” of the officers was supported in our cases, but that “it is limited in significant measure by the fact that it is discernable from objective considerations.” Id. at 452 (emphasis in original). One of our number dissented.

Resolving a split among the circuits on that issue, the Supreme Court vacated our decision and held “that a pretrial detainee must show only that the force purposely or knowingly used against him was objectively unreasonable” and that no showing regarding the defendant’s state of mind is required. Kingsley, 135 S.Ct. at 2473. The court then remanded the case to this court and directed us to determine whether the district court’s error could be characterized as harmless based “in part on the detailed specifics of th[e] case.” Id. at 2477. The Court then remanded the case to this court and directed that we address that issue.

In his Rule 54 statement, Mr. Kingsley submits that we ought to remand this case to the district court for a new trial on his excessive force claim against Sergeant Stan Hendrickson and Deputy Fritz Degner. The defendants take a different position; in their view, the decision of the Supreme Court entitles them to qualified immunity. Alternatively, they submit that any error in the instructions was harmless.

B.

With this background, we now follow the direction of the Supreme Court and address the question of harmless error. “[I]n order to obtain a new trial based on an incorrect jury instruction, [an appellant] must establish both that the instructions failed to properly state the law and that he was prejudiced by the error because the jury was likely to be misled or confused.” Davis v. Wessel, 792 F.3d 793, 798 (7th Cir.2015) (alterations in original) (internal quotation marks omitted). As the Supreme Court noted, this question is usually a fact-intensive inquiry that requires assessment of the entire record.

We have undertaken the required scrutiny of the record and are convinced that the error in this case cannot be characterized as harmless. True, many of the factors to which the district court invited the jury’s attention were the same factors that a jury would assess under the objective standard now mandated by the Supreme Court. Nevertheless, those factors were suggested to the jury not in the context of applying them to an objective test but as circumstantial evidence from which an inference of reckless or malicious intent might be drawn. Moreover, given the evidence of record, the jurors might well have decided that, although the officers had acted in an objectively unreasonable manner, they did not have the subjective intent required by the erroneous instruction. That is, the jurors might well have concluded that the officers acted in an objectively unreasonable manner in their effort to handle a manacled prisoner, a conclusion supported by the testimony of Mr. Kingsley's expert. Nevertheless, the jury also might have concluded that the officers, while unreasonable in their approach, did not have a reckless or malicious intent.

Under the Supreme Court's holding, Mr. Kingsley should prevail if he is able to establish that the officers acted in an unreasonable manner—without regard to their subjective intent. The evidence of record would have supported a finding for him under that theory, but the jury was told that it also had to find the officers had a proscribed intent. This last requirement increased, significantly, his burden of proof. The error was not harmless.

C.

The defendants next suggest that they should be able to avoid retrial because they are entitled to qualified immunity. Their argument is a nuanced one. In their view, the decision of the Supreme Court, resolving a circuit split in its decision in this case, altered the substantive law of liability. Because there was a division among the circuits on the state of the law at the time that they acted, they contend that they cannot be held liable for their actions.

Although the matter of qualified immunity was brought to the attention of the Court, its instructions to us make no mention of our returning to this issue. In any event, we do not believe that this defense is a viable one here. In § 1983 actions, "[q]ualified immunity shields government officials from civil damages liability unless the official violated a statutory or constitutional right that was clearly established at the time of the challenged conduct." Taylor v. Barkes, — U.S. —, —, 135 S.Ct. 2042, 2044, 192 L.Ed.2d 78 (2015) (internal quotation marks omitted). Under this standard, "[a]n officer cannot be said to have violated a clearly established right unless the right's contours were sufficiently definite that any reasonable official in [his] shoes would have understood that he was violating it," meaning that existing precedent placed the statutory or constitutional question beyond debate." City & Cty. of San Francisco, Cal. v. Sheehan, — U.S. —, —, 135 S.Ct. 1765, 1774, 191 L.Ed.2d 856 (2015) (second and third alteration in original) (citation omitted) (internal quotation marks omitted). To address this question, the Supreme Court has instructed us that we must define the right in question with a sufficient degree of particularity. Thus, in this case, the scope of the right in issue must be drawn more narrowly than the right of a pretrial detainee to be free from excessive force during his detention; instead, we must examine whether the law clearly established that the use of a Taser on a non-resisting detainee, lying prone and handcuffed behind his back, was constitutionally excessive.

Here, the facts surrounding the underlying incident are in sharp dispute. When those facts are construed in the light most favorable to Mr. Kingsley, see Saucier v. Katz, 533 U.S. 194, 201, 121 S.Ct. 2151, 150 L.Ed.2d 272 (2001), a reasonable officer was certainly on notice at the time of the occurrence that Mr. Kingsley's conduct did not justify the sort of force described in his account. According to Mr. Kingsley, he was not resisting the officers in a manner that justified slamming his head into the wall, using a Taser while he was manacled, and leaving him alone after use of that instrument. Our precedent makes clear that when the officers applied the Taser to Mr. Kingsley in May 2010, use of the Taser violated Mr. Kingsley's right to be free from excessive force if he was not resisting. See Lewis v. Downey, 581 F.3d 467, 478–79 (7th Cir.2009) (denying qualified immunity to officers who applied a Taser to a pretrial detainee lying "prone on [a] bed, weakened, and docile," in response to his refusal of an order to get out of bed); Brooks v. City of Aurora, Ill., 653 F.3d 478, 487 (7th Cir.2011) (noting that prior cases had established the illegality of the use of pepper spray on an arrestee who was "already . . . handcuffed and . . . offering no physical resistance" or was "lying face down . . . with both arms handcuffed behind his back" (internal quotation marks omitted)); see also Sallenger v. Oakes, 473 F.3d 731, 741–42 (7th Cir.2007) (noting, in its evaluation of the officers' conduct for immunity purposes, that the fact that the force was applied after the arrestee was handcuffed was a significant factor in denying immunity); cf. Forrest v. Prine, 620 F.3d 739, 745 (7th Cir.2010) (finding force was not unconstitutionally excessive when Taser was applied "where the officers were faced with aggression, disruption, [and] physical threat" and where plaintiff "posed an immediate threat to safety and order within the jail" (alteration in original) (internal quotation marks omitted)).

If we were to accept the defendants' argument here, we would untether the qualified immunity defense from its moorings of protecting those acting in reliance on a standard that is later determined to be infirm. Here, before and after the Supreme Court's decision in this case, the standards for the amount of force that can be permissibly employed remain the same. To accept the defense of qualified immunity here, we would have to accept the dubious proposition that, at the time the officers acted, they were on notice only that they could not have a reckless or malicious intent and that, as long as they acted without such an intent, they could apply any degree of force they chose. As we have noted, however, the law clearly established that the amount of force had to be reasonable in light of the legitimate objectives of the institution.

Accordingly, the judgment of the district court is reversed, and the case is remanded for further proceedings in accordance with this opinion.

Re: CCRB case number 201703481

Dear Mr. Walker:

I am the investigator assigned to the above-referenced complaint, which was filed with the Civilian Complaint Review Board. The CCRB, which is staffed entirely by civilians, is a city agency independent of the New York City Police Department. I am currently attempting to contact your attorney in order to obtain permission to speak to you regarding the matter.

In order to fully investigate this complaint, I need to speak with your attorney and then yourself as soon as possible. Please call me or have your attorney call me immediately at (212) 912-2016. If I am not in my office when you call, please leave a telephone number and a time at which you can be reached.

Thank you very much for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

Wassim Abedrabbo
Investigator

Re: CCRB case number 201703481

Dear Mr. Walker:

I am now writing to inform you of the Board's findings on the allegation(s) raised by the above-referenced complaint.

Allegation(s) by letter :

Board finding(s) :

A) Force:
An officer used physical force against Michael Walker.

Complainant Uncooperative

The Board did not conduct a full and thorough investigation of this complaint in the absence of an available and cooperative complainant and/or victim(s). However, where new evidence or a previously unavailable or uncooperative witness becomes available within eighteen months of the Board's closure of the case, the Board may reopen the case if such new evidence may reasonably lead to a different finding. To request that the Board reopen a closed case, please detail the new evidence and the request in a letter addressed to Nina Mickens, Director of Case Management, at CCRB, 100 Church Street, 10th Floor, New York, NY 10007.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Darche
Executive Director

EXPLANATION OF BOARD FINDINGS

Substantiated – the officer(s) committed misconduct.*

Unfounded – the officer(s) did not commit the alleged action.

Unsubstantiated – it is unclear whether misconduct occurred.

Exonerated – the actions of the officer(s) were not found to be misconduct.

Miscellaneous – the officer has resigned, retired or has been terminated.

Officer(s) Unidentified - the subject officer(s) of the alleged action could not be identified.

Complainant/Victim Uncooperative – the complainant/victim did not respond to repeated attempts by the investigator to schedule an interview or failed to appear for scheduled interviews.

Complainant/Victim Unavailable – the investigator was unable to locate the complainant/victim with the contact information obtained.

Victim Unidentified – there is not enough information to locate the alleged victim.

Complaint Withdrawn – the complainant/victim no longer wishes to go forward and asked to withdraw the complaint. No case is closed for this reason until the person states that they are voluntarily withdrawing the complaint.

If you have new evidence, not previously available to the CCRB, or a previously unavailable or uncooperative witness becomes available, the Board may be willing to reopen your case if such new evidence may reasonably lead to a different finding. To request that the Board reopen your case in such circumstances, please detail the new evidence and request in a letter addressed to: Executive Director, at the above address, as soon as possible.

*The Board may, when it substantiates an allegation, make one of the following recommendations:

Formalized Training: The officer should receive training at the Police Academy in regard to the specific allegation(s).

Command discipline: The officer should receive discipline at the local, command level, which may range from instructions to the loss of up to ten days' pay.

Charges and specifications: Charges should be filed against the officer, which may result in an administrative hearing and a penalty more severe than a command discipline.
